Chamber of Commerce Host Life Skills Day for Fleming High School Seniors

Flemingsburg, KY – Fleming County High School seniors focused on life after graduation during the Life Skills day held on March 8th. Businesses and community organizations came together on at the Double S Entertainment Center to paint a realistic picture of what students should expect in the months ahead.

Sponsored by the Fleming County Chamber of Commerce, the Life Skills day consisted of guest speakers and business exhibitors who passed out scholarship applications, reviewed student resumes and discussed job opportunities within their organizations.

Leaders in the community spoke to the students about the importance of possessing a strong work ethic, proper interview etiquette, maintaining professional social media accounts, responsible banking and budgeting, and personal safety and security.

“The life skills day was very beneficial for my classmates and I”, stated senior Adam Egan. “It provided us the chance to meet and network with businesses and leaders in our community. Altogether, this experience provided insight and knowledge to make our futures successful!”
